TWO BUILDINGS BURN AT MURRAY AFTER MIDNIGHT

Loss of $24,800 With $8,900 Insurance Sustained by the Blaze.

Topeka Hotel Destroyed by Fire This Morning.

SOME GUESTS ARE MISSING

Murray, Ky., Jan. 14. (Special.)—Two business buildings on the main street were destroyed by fire of unknown origin shortly after midnight this morning. They were Dr. J. G. Hart's building, occupied by Everyt Holland's restaurant, and S. H. Dees' building, occupied by Asher Graham's dry goods store. The total loss was $24,800, with $8,900 insurance. The Hart building was valued at $5,000, with $2,500 insurance, and the Dees building at $3,000 with $2,500 insurance. Holland's loss was $1,800, with $1,200 insurance, and Graham's loss $10,000 with $2,500 insurance.

Shots fired as an alarm, caused people to believe it was a night rider attack, and volunteer firemen stayed indoors until apprised of the real cause of the alarm. Then they did valiant work in saving the entire business section.

It is believed the fire originated in a pressing club in the Hart building. That was the second alarm of the night, as a hen house and coal shed near the N. C. & St. L. station burned last night.

Hotel Blaze.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 14.—Fire completely destroyed the Copeland hotel this morning. Thirty were hurt, A. W. Smith, of McPherson, former republican candidate for governor, probably fatally. The hotel was full when the fire occurred at 4 o'clock. Members of the legislature, their families and friends, were attending the opening of the legislature in the building. Many people jumped from upper windows.

The fire started near the kitchen and spread to the upper floor through the elevator shaft. The stairway was near the elevator, which prevented escape. Twenty were rescued on ladders. Smith made a rope of bed clothes, but had to drop. He was internally hurt. All the guests but E. L. Lambert, of Emporia, are accounted for. It is believed he is dead in the ruins. Former Governor Glick escaped uninjured. Speaker Dole and twelve representatives and seven senators and two judges are among the rescued.

Same Bill was Killed Last Term by Request of President Roosevelt.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 14.—The three anti-Japanese bills introduced in the assembly by Grove L. Johnson of Sacramento and by A. M. Drew of Fresno, prohibiting aliens from holding lands in the state, have attracted such wide interest that the 1,000 copies printed of each are already exhausted, and there is a demand for more.

The Johnson bills are designed to prevent Japanese from becoming directors of corporations; to segregate their children in the schools and to segregate all Japanese by defining the limits in which they must live.

The police are making an investigation of the fire at the home of Joe Johnson, colored, of North Eleventh street, where two fires were of incendiary origin.

Nobleman Declares He Will Ask For Soldiers and Trespassers Assure Him They Will Fight.

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 14.—Five hundred destitute men today marched to the estate of the Marquis Bute, seized uncultivated preserves and began digging land for planting. This follows vain appeals of the unemployed to the government for an opportunity to earn a living on the hunting preserves. Bute is seeking officers to evict the laborers and threatens to call soldiers. Laborers say they will fight and serious trouble is feared.

Such a course, if pursued, would free about 250 prisoners and enable the accommodation of those remaining at the temporary penitentiary at McAlester.

RODMAN CLARK IS ACQUITTED; SAYS NO MORE LIQUOR

Charged With Killing Small Boy by Giving Him Whisky to Drink.

Both Were Found Drunk Together in Country.

GOOD DEFENSE IS PRESENTED

"Not guilty" was the verdict returned this morning by the jury in the case of Rodman Clark, 19 years old, charged with the murder of little Vernon Davis, 7 years old, by giving him a large quantity of whisky, from the effects of which, it was alleged, he died. The verdict was reached by the jury on the first ballot last night, as there was little doubt in the minds of the jury that the Davis boy drank the whisky from the bottle while Clark lay in a drunken stupor by the roadside.

The case was bitterly fought by both sides, and the arguments by the attorneys were brilliant, and the court room was crowded throughout the trial yesterday, as much interest was evinced in the case by residents of the county where the boys lived.

Thanksgiving Day the Davis boy was found completely intoxicated, and Clark, who had been drunk, was by his side. The prosecution sought to prove that Clark forced the Davis child to drink the liquor, and while not trying for a verdict of murder in the first degree, Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Lovett and County Attorney Barkley strove for a verdict of manslaughter. For the defense, Attorneys Hendrick & Corbett and Attorney Middleton made the plea that the Davis boy had an appetite for liquor and frequently had been drunk. In the evidence it was testified that the Davis boy was given an injection of morphine and expert testimony was introduced to show that this was improper treatment.

The jury was given the case yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Clark appeared depressed all during the trial, but this morning when the verdict was returned his face brightened and he appeared happy. Although he has been a bad boy, he has declared that he will never touch liquor again.

Other Cases. Harry Bedford, colored, charged with grand larceny, was given three years in the penitentiary this morning. Bedford was tried yesterday morning, but the jury failed to agree. He stole a watch.

Joe Brown, a negro boy 16 years old, was sentenced to a term in the House of Reform until 21 years old, and an indictment against him was filed today.

Campaign Contributions.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 14.—A bill to regulate campaign contributions was introduced in the senate. Corporations, according to the bill, must, if they make contributions, do so in the prescribed manner under penalty of dissolution. Candidates for political office are not to be permitted to spend money except for strictly legitimate purposes. It also provides that liquor dealers are not to be allowed to make any contributions of any sort for political purposes.

Case of Diphtheria

One case of diphtheria, the first in a month, was reported today by Dr. Pendley. Little Elizabeth Knowles, four years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Knowles, 913 Trimble street, is in a serious condition today with the disease.

Time Extended

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 14.—The Missouri supreme court granted the Waters-Pierce Oil company 30 days from tomorrow in which to conform to the recent order to separate from the Standard Oil trust. Judge Priest, its attorney, asked for extension in a telephone call from St. Louis, and it was granted. The company has until March 1 to pay a $50,000 fine.

Hains Case Argued.

Flushing, L. I., Jan. 14.—Darrin characterized the Hains brothers as "cowardly murderers," who killed an unarmed man. He charged that conspiracy, because Peter considered him guilty of wrecking his home. He defended Mrs. Annis from the perjury charge brought by the "paid lawyer of two cowards." He expressed the belief that after a verdict rendered fewer people will consider adultery a justification for murder. Thornton plainly was worried by the speech and shows unmistakable signs of fear as the case is closing. Judge Walsh is in a serious condition. Judge Crane hopes to give the case to the jury tonight.

RETURNED TO HUSBAND And Woman's Paramour Killed Her Then Committed Suicide.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Because she returned to her husband, from whom she had been separated, Mrs. Lizzie Harbin, aged 41, and mother of seven children, was shot and killed at her home by Frederick J. Kraemer, aged 23. Kraemer then shot and killed himself.

Gaston received a message from the sheriff at Lexington to meet the accommodation train this afternoon and arrest a man named Duke Wood, who was wanted in Henderson county for bootlegging and for whom there was a reward of $50 outstanding. When the train arrived Wood was arrested and scolded, and Gaston was thrown for the city prison with him. They had gone but a short distance when Wood belted the chief with his fist and threw him into the gutter. Gaston hogan firing immediately at the fleeing prisoner, but to no avail.

LEGAL HANGINGS IN M'CRACKEN CO. BEING RECALLED

First Execution Took Place Long Before Civil War in This City.

Old-Timers Remember Circumstances of Others.

HAVE TWO CONDEMNED IN JAIL

With two murderers in the county jail with a verdict of death hanging over their heads, the older citizens have been set talking about the number of legal executions Paducah has had. Should Jonas Smith and George Freeman swing the number would be eleven, as already there have been nine hangings.

The first hanging recalled by older citizens was the execution of Sam Graham many years before the Civil war. While in a fit of jealousy Graham stabbed his beautiful girl friend seventeen times in the breast. After a trial he was sentenced to be hung and was executed near where Riverside hospital is located.

An Indian named Scott was the second murderer to swing. He criminally assaulted a school girl, and met a just penalty on a scaffold near the Illinois Central railroad incline. During the Civil war three negroes were executed by the order of military court, and all three were hung on the river bank near the scene of the death of the Indian. Another negro was hung by the military court in the hollow near Eleventh and Clark streets.

Three negroes have been hung in the jail yard, the first being Wm. Fielder in 1854 for murder. The second was Jesse Brown in 1892, he being killed for stabbing a negro man. The last execution was that of "Devil" Wilkerson in 1896, who killed a negro woman in Kelly's alley, and while escaping met with a knife said, "Fly high, old buzzard, you got to fight some day."

Besides her parents Miss Gleaves is survived by one sister, Emma, and two brothers, James and Lawrence, all younger than Bessie.

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Catarrh is a blood disease which causes a general inflammation of the inner linings or mucous membranes of the body. The diseased condition of these delicate surfaces and tissues produces all the well known symptoms of the trouble, such as ringing noises in the head and ears, tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, pains above the eyes, irritation of the throat, sometimes slight fever, and a general feeling of weakness and ill health. Even the lungs become affected by the continual passage of impure blood through them, and there is danger of consumption if the disease is allowed to remain in the system. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter, making this vital fluid pure, rich and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. cures the system of catarrh by attacking the trouble at its head and entirely removing the cause from the blood, thus making a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. is made entirely from health-giving roots, herbs and barks, and for this reason is especially safe and desirable medicine. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

New York, Jan. 14.—Victor Morawetz, formerly chairman of the executive committee of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company, was on the stand in the United States Special Examiner Sylvester G. Williams. He was a most interesting witness and told in detail the story of E. H. Harriman's entry into the Atchison directorate, through men the latter named, after Harriman had fought to stop Atchison extension into California.

Victor Morawetz was called to the witness stand by former Judge Lovett in the United Pacific merger hearing before United States Special Examiner Sylvester G. Williams. He said he was formerly counsel and then chairman of the executive committee of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company but resigned last October.

Mr. Morawetz testified: "In 1901 the Atchison company bought stock, and second mortgage bonds of the Santa Fe, Prescott & Phoenix Railway company. Frank Murphy was president of the company. Because of his ability and our confidence in him we asked him to continue as president. This he has done until today.

"Mr. Murphy had a project to build a road from Phoenix to Benson. I did not think the prospect a good one. Local business was small, mining business was purely prospective. "In the summer of 1902 we determined to extend the Atchison system west to San Francisco Bay. We thereupon entered negotiations to purchase stock of the California & Northwestern. While we were trying to accomplish this the stock passed to the Southern Pacific."

Mr. Morawetz, regarding Mr. Harriman's negotiations with the Atchison, said:

"About September, 1904, I was informed by Mr. Harriman that he and some associates had purchased 300,000 shares of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe stock. He asked for representation on the board. I said I would never willingly give representation on our board to the Union Pacific or any rival railroad company."

"Mr. Harriman said that interference with the Atchison was not contemplated, that he and other gentlemen had bought individually stock of the Atchison as a private investment. Those gentlemen were Mr. Rogers, Mr. William Rockefeller, Mr. Stillman, Mr. Schiff, or his firm, Kuhn, Loeb & Company."

Live and Let Live.

"I said I would not consent to representation until our differences were adjusted. Mr. Harriman urged that the management of great railway systems should deal with each other openly, fairly, and on the broad policy 'live and let live.' I agreed with him as to this, as a general proposition. I told him I believed many abuses were due to the attempts of rivals to gain advantage by petty methods and sharp practices. However, I said I did not like the idea of having a Union Pacific director on our board. Mr. Harriman suggested that he be given a place on the Atchison board and offered me a place in the executive committee of the Union Pacific or Southern Pacific."

"About the time of the stockholders' meeting of 1904 the difficulty had not yet been adjusted. Mr. Harriman handed me proxies for 280,000 shares of stock, not to be used unless we reached an agreement before the meeting."

Harriman Yields.

"Our difficulties were by that time very few. He had agreed that the Southern Pacific should build a low-grade line from Phoenix to Deming and give the Atchison the privilege, at any time, to arrange traffic rights on very favorable terms. He desired that we should not move traffic over the line to El Paso, where we would connect with the Union Pacific, Rock Island and other lines. I did not attach much importance to this. Some time after he yielded on all points remaining, and Mr. Rogers and Mr. Frick were then elected to our board, and one of them, Mr. Rogers, to the executive committee."

"Mr. Harriman and I were quite open with each other. I realized that the gentleman named could have elected four members with the 280,000 shares of stock, constituting one quarter of the 15 board members, if they desired to. That would have taken four years to do, one a year. "He pointed out, or I pointed out, that it would not be well to have a board of directors divided against itself."

Mr. Morawetz, whose narrative had been delivered glowily and with many pauses, here answered a few questions of counsel.

Were Zealous Directors. "What kind of directors were Mr. Frick and Mr. Rogers?" asked counsel for the railroad companies.

"They were very zealous. I don't recall any question raised on account of their connection with the Southern Pacific or Union Pacific," replied Mr. Morawetz.

"Did Mr. Harriman ever try to exert any influence over Atchison matters?"

"He never did."

The witness said he never heard of a relaxation of competition between Atchison and Southern Pacific.

Mr. Severance, of counsel for the government, asked Mr. Morawetz if he thought it proper thing to turn the Phoenix & Eastern line over to the Southern Pacific, when the people had given the right of way for a competing line.

"I'm not sure I know it," Mr. Morawetz replied.

Makes An Admission.

The witness under further cross examination admitted that the "link" which had been turned over to the Southern Pacific would have connected with the California Coast, Mexico and the northwest.

Mr. Severance quoted legal authority for the statement that the board of directors of one company should not have, as members, directors of a rival company.

"You don't think accordingly," he said, "that Mr. Rogers, or Mr. Frick should have been among the directors?"

"That doesn't follow."

"Why are they better than other men?"

"I haven't found in my large experience, that gentlemen of large affairs are influenced by petty things."

"Not by such trifling things as self-interest?"

"No, not by small affairs."

The hearing was adjourned until 2 p. m.

SHIVELEY GETS THE NOMINATION

Of Democrats Caucus of Indiana Legislature.

On Twentieth Ballot Kern Lead Unl Seventeenth Ballot—Shively Gathered Strength.

AS THE BALLOTING CONTINUED.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 14.—At 1 o'clock this morning the Democratic caucus of the Indiana legislature after twenty ballots chose for its Congressman Benjamin F. Shively, of South Bend, for the United States senate. The last ballot stood as follows:

Shively, 42; Kern, 35; Lamb, 4; Menzies, 1; Charles Mass, 1. Shively was escorted into the hall, made a brief speech and was loudly applauded.

From the first ballot Shively developed more strength than was generally conceded to him and on the 20th ballot received a sufficient number of votes to win.

John W. Kern, who had a good lead on the first ballot, was unable to master enough strength to win the prize. At 1:30 this morning (Thursday) his followers tried to force an adjournment of the caucus but were defeated by one vote. None of the other candidates developed sufficient strength to be a strong contender in the caucus.

Shively was born in St. Joseph county, March 20, 1867. He graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan in 1889; taught school and engaged in journalism; was elected to the 48th congress to fill a vacancy and re-elected to 49th, 50th and 51st congresses. Was Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana in 1896; received the Democratic vote of Indiana state legislature, for United States senator in 1903 and 1905.

A well known consistent theatergoer who "sees everything" worth while says the New York production of "A Knight for a Day" is fully the equal in merit and equipment to Wallick's theater as was the original production in Chicago, where for one solid year the theater was crowded with people who find entertainment in these frothy effervescent musical pieces.

STATE-WIDERS PASS MEASURE

Prohibiting Sale of Intoxicants in Tennessee.

Great Demonstration in Galleries and on Floor of Legislature—Governor Expected to Veto.

BILL WILL BE PASSED OVER HIM.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 14.—The bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicants in Tennessee passed the house, 62 to 36. Fifty votes is a majority. Twenty-two Republicans voted for and one against the measure.

The measure passed in the one favorably acted on Tuesday by the senate, and now goes to Governor Patterson. He is expected to veto it, but under the constitution his veto only operates as a suggestion, not as a stay, and a bare majority may pass the bill over the executive's unfavorable action.

The bill provides that prohibition will become effective July 1, 1909.

When the final vote was announced the cheers from the galleries were deafening, the demonstration on the floor and in the galleries lasting several minutes.

Toddy the state-widens are jubilantly asserting that the bill will be passed over the governor's veto by about the same vote originally received in each house.

Accident Brings a Fortune.

What he believed would prove an unfortunate when his team crashed into that of Col. Franklin Swaine at the Pennsylvania railroad station at Charlottesville was a very fortunate mishap to the Rev. George Trion, pastor of the Episcopal chapel church, a few miles south of this borough. Mr. Trion's horse became frightened and ran into Col. Swaine's carriage, throwing him out.

After Mr. Trion had pulled himself out of the wreckage, he would pay the damages. Col. Swaine, who is a Philadelphia attorney and resides in West Haverhill township, asked his name, and when informed exclaimed, with amazement:

"Trion's! Man, I have been hunting for you for fifteen years. Your most desire to leave you a legacy and she had about decided to leave the money to some charitable institution."

SMALL CAVE NEAR GLASGOW, KY., IS CAUSE OF COMMENT

Glasgow, Ky.—There is a small cave on Beaver Creek, about four miles from Glasgow, where the Glasgow and Columbia road crosses the creek, that has long been the subject of comment of the people in that section owing to its history—or lack of history, rather—and, strange to say, it has never, except

BEAUTIFUL HAIR FROM A HOME-MADE TONIC.

Every woman desires beautiful hair and a good tonic is as much a necessary adjunct to the toilet as soap or tooth powder. But good hair tonics are expensive. Here is a recipe for a home-made preparation that will give as good or better results than the highest priced ready-made tonics and not cost half as much. Mix half a pint of alcohol with half a pint of water, add an ounce of Beta-Quinol. Simply shake well together and your tonic is ready for use. If you prefer you can use a pint of hopped beer instead of the alcohol and water. Beta-Quinol used daily will give vitality, health and attractiveness to the hair. Any woman who appreciates the value of luxuriant, soft and glossy hair cannot afford to be without this almost magical quinine hair tonic. Any druggist will sell you the Beta-Quinol and alcohol or buy rum.

at one time, and then only for a few weeks, attracted attention outside of that section.

The cave was found by accident several years ago. A party of fox hunters were chasing a fox in that section when the fox became so hard pushed that it ran into what then appeared to be a hole in the ground. On examination the hole proved to be a cave large enough to admit a man's body. Presumably the hole was eight or ten feet deep, and one of the hunters proposed to go down and oust the fox. The descent was made by means of a pole. At the bottom the hunter found a passage, and, following it a few feet, came into a room some ten feet wide and twelve to fifteen feet long.

Made Hair Stand On End.

When his eyes became accustomed to the light from a small torch he saw a sight that made his hair stand on end and almost froze the bloom in his veins. The bottom of the cave was literally covered with the skeletons of human beings. He hurried out and informed the party of his discovery and several of the party ventured into the gruesome chamber and viewed the find with astonishment. Everything indicated that the skeletons had been there for many years.

The discovery became known, and the local rangers contained accounts of the discovery and for a few weeks speculation was rife as to when the bodies were placed in the cave, and many were the theories advanced as to how they probably came there. Many believed that at some remote period robbers had a rendezvous near there and after robbing a passerby would kill and throw his body in the cave. Another story was told, which, by the way, had some weight, though not generally accepted, to the effect that a party of emigrants from California en route to Virginia had been massacred there in the '40s for the wealth they were supposed to have and their bodies placed in the cave. The fact that several Spanish and Mexican coins were found near the cave shortly after the skeletons were discovered caused the last-named theory to have more weight than any advanced at that time.

Soon interest waned and ere long the incident had passed out of the public mind, the general feeling that it was one of the unsolvable mysteries and would perhaps never be known, and the cave ceased to be of interest.

Sequel of the Remains.

Recently a gentleman returned from the west and in conversation with friends he told a story that was told by an old gentleman who at one time lived in this country, and the story, to those who knew of the existence of the cave and skeletons, bears a striking sequel and may be the link that connects the two.

The story as told by the old man was that in the summer of 1858, as he remembers the date, a party composed of three men, four boys, two women, two girls and two or three small children camped on Beaver Creek in a small bottom about one hundred yards from the cave. Their stock seemed jaded from hard work and presumably they were all worn out. An air of mystery surrounded the camp and no one in that section could find out much about the "movements" as they were termed. To all inquiries they gave out nothing except they were from Tennessee, and were going west. One day, while hunting near the camp, the man who told the story came suddenly on one of the girls sitting on a log weeping. He approached and asked her if he could be of any assistance when she suddenly sprang up and ran. A package of letters which were in her lap fell to the ground unnoticed by her and after her abrupt departure were picked up by the man, who, thinking to restore the letters, started in the direction taken by the girl. When near the camp he was recoiled by a man who gruffly asked what he wanted, to which he replied that he had a package for a young lady of the camp, whereupon the man told him to come no further as he could not see the young lady. To avoid further parley and possibly trouble the man left. When he reached home he opened the letters that he was not allowed to return and found them to be a correspondence between a young lady and young man seemingly desperately in love. The letters were signed "Harry" and addressed to "Amy." From the letters it was gathered that "Harry" was engaged in some kind of an unlawful enterprise and the girl was persuading him to give it up. The last letter dated the day the package was found, was from "Harry," who had ceased to persuade and was using threats. The girl had doubtless just received the letter through some unknown agency and no doubt it was the cause of her great grief. In this letter the boy swore that unless she fled with him she would not live to reach the west, and also threatened to murder the whole outfit.

Theory As to the Skeletons.

Deciding to make another attempt to restore the letters the man went to the camp the next afternoon, and found to his amazement that they were gone, although they were there only the night before. Nothing was ever heard of them and it was believed that they had gone west. However, after the story was told of the finding of the skeletons, the old man's story of the letters was taken up and it is believed that they are the remains of the camping party, but how one man made such a slaughter is hard to understand unless he was assisted by his sweetheart, who, some say, was dragged the entire party who were then slain and put in the cave.

Of all the theories advanced as to the probable origin of the skeletons the above is the more plausible, as the cave contained about the same number of skeletons as there were persons in the camping party. Then, too, there were large and small skeletons, which tally with the sequel of the emigrant party.

The cave with its gruesome contents stands today as mute witness of a terrible murder that may never be known until the victims face their murderer at judgment.

Good Health From Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a Virginia man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The doctor recommended milk, half water, but it was not sufficiently nourishing.

"A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cereal. The result was really marvelous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and today is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen."

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least the value of this great food."

Ever Feel This Way?

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS, described by ladies who have been cured by Cardui, may be just LIKE YOUR OWN CASE.

If so, take CARDUI, for YOUR female troubles. It will help you.

ACHED ALL OVER

Two years ago, my health was very bad. I suffered with aches and pains all over my body. At times I seemed to be dying. At last I decided to try Wine of Cardui. Twelve bottles of this wonderful medicine stopped my suffering, and made my life worth living.

MRS. MATTIE CAMPBELL, Hatchett, Texas.

FEMALE CATARRH

I suffered for nine (9) years with female catarrh, which caused many disagreeable symptoms. At last I decided to abandon other medicines and try Wine of Cardui, and have been improving ever since. Now I am almost as strong as I ever was and ask for no one to help me with my housework.

CORDE ABERNATHY, Gaffney, S. C.

MORNING SICKNESS

I cannot say enough in praise of Cardui. It is a blessing to suffering women. During pregnancy, I vomited nearly all I ate and my limbs were swollen, so I could not walk. A week after taking Cardui, the swelling was nearly all gone, and though I have had 12 children, the labor that came after taking Cardui, was the easiest birth and the fastest baby I ever had.

MRS. ALICE COTTEN, Wheeling, W. Va.

ALL RUN DOWN

About five years ago, I was all run down, having been afflicted with female trouble for several years. The doctor said I would have to have an operation, but I began to take Cardui, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt like a different woman. Whenever I feel over-worked or run-down, a few doses of Cardui make me feel better.

MRS. A. REYNER, Cameron, Ill.

SUCH DIZZY SPELLS

I suffered from female trouble every month, ever since I was 16. I had such dizzy spells and headache that I would have to go to bed, and was so weak I could not get around for days at a time. Ever since I began to take Cardui, the dizzy spells and other female troubles stopped, and now I am well and happy.

MRS. M. E. ALLEED, Hartford, Wash.

SAVED FROM OPERATION

The first three years I was married was the most wretched part of my life. I suffered everything with female troubles, had such bearing down pains I could hardly walk across the room, and was in awful misery. I tried several medicines without relief, and the doctor said I would have to have an operation, but my husband said no, and so I began to take Cardui. After the first three bottles I felt like another person, slept better, didn't have to be operated on and now we have a fine baby girl.

MRS. MABEL RAY, Wilmore, Kas.

NEARLY CRAMPED TO DEATH

For nine years, I suffered with severe female disorders, was irregular, my back and side would almost kill me and every month I nearly cramped to death. I tried everything, without relief, and lost all hope, till one day I took Cardui, which toned me up, so I can do my housework with all ease and now enjoy good health.

SARAH J. HOSKINS, Cary, Ky.

DIZZY, DULL HEADACHE

I am 60 years old, and had female trouble, pains low down in back, a dizzy, dull headache, palpitation of the heart, and was so weak I could only sit up a little while at a time. I had one of our best physicians, but saw I was going down, rapidly, so decided to try Cardui. Before I had finished the first bottle I felt much improved and now that I have taken 10 bottles I am up, able to do my work.

MRS. E. BEATY, Lusk, Tex.

A TOTAL WRECK

Cardui is certainly the best and most wonderful tonic there is, to build up shattered nerves and for all other female troubles. I have used it for myself and daughters. Before taking it, I was a total wreck, but after I began improved from the first and I know that it saved my life.

MRS. EVELINE MCGREW, Austin, Tex.

ALMOST A SKELETON

I was very weak from female disorders and was almost a skeleton. It tired me to walk just a little. Now, I do all the sewing, cooking, washing, ironing and general housework, for a family of nine (9), and haven't been in bed a single day, for over two (2) years. I think Cardui is the greatest remedy on earth.

MRS. LULA WALDEN, Granding, S. C.

PAINS IN SIDE

Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous I could hardly be up and could hardly bear the noise of my children. I had such a pain in my side, it hurt me every breath. I also had a hacking cough, could not eat well, fell off a great deal and lay awake at nights or else had scary dreams. Inside of one week, after taking Cardui, the pain had left my side and in three weeks I felt like another person. Now I feel right well.

MRS. DORA STAUFFER, Wily, Va.

SAVED HER LIFE

I take great pleasure in telling you how Cardui benefited me, for I know it saved my life. I was troubled with flooding spells and other female troubles for years, and was so weak I could not walk alone across the room. I had not taken one bottle of Cardui before I was greatly improved and when I had taken two bottles, I felt like a new woman.

MRS. RUTH WILSON, Travelers Rest, S. C.

COULD NOT SLEEP

You know how sick I was, when I first wrote you for advice and you told me to take Cardui. I had had fainting spells, could not eat, was weak and thin and had such awful pains all over. I was so nervous, I could not go to sleep at night till about four o'clock in the morning. After taking 11 bottles of Wine of Cardui I am now well and strong; can eat anything, sleep all night, can do all my housework and feel better than in years.

MRS. F. G. PETERSON, Hershey, Neb.

FEMALE PAINS

I did not know that anything could stop female pains, from which I had suffered for two years, until I tried your wonderful medicine, Wine of Cardui. I had other female troubles besides, but was cured in a little while. Cardui is a blessing to womankind. I recommend it to all my friends.

GRATRUDE GATLIN, Timberville, Miss.

SO IRREGULAR

I was so irregular and suffered from other female troubles, but I took three bottles of Cardui and it has done me more good than any medicine I ever took in my life. Now I am perfectly regular and on the way to health again.

MRS. MARY FREEMAN, Paint Lick, Ky.

WORKS LIKE A CHARM

I recommend Cardui to all my lady friends. I think it is the best medicine for female troubles. It works like a charm. I had suffered untold misery for 20 years, with various female troubles. I took all kinds of medicines, but nothing did me as much good as Wine of Cardui. Now I am regular, suffer no pain and am better in every way.

MRS. MATTIE CHRISTOPHER, Atlanta, Ga.

EASY CONFINEMENT

I cannot find words to express my gratitude to Wine of Cardui, for helping me in my first confinement. Formerly I suffered all day and night, but this last one was a fine big baby girl; she weighed 9 1-2 lbs. at birth and I was sick only 45 minutes. I never felt better in my life than I do now.

MRS. IRA GRAY, Budd, Ill.

NUMB SPELLS

I suffered with numb fainting spells ever since I was sixteen. I would lie, sometimes all day, like I was dead, and could not talk or see. They spent hundreds of dollars on doctors, but nothing helped me. At last, about 4 years ago, I began to take Cardui, and since then I have never had any more of those spells. I took five bottles of Cardui, and can truthfully say that it cured me.

MRS. M. JOHNSON, Tampa, Fla.

Some Weird Hair-Dressing.

A joint session of the American Anthropological association and the American Folklore society was held in the afternoon in the lecture hall of the Maryland Institute. The first address was delivered by Dr. Harry Dorsey, who told of a recent visit to New Guinea. In a graphic manner he described the leading traits and characteristics of the inhabitants, known as Papuans.

"One of the most interesting things," he said, "that came under my observation was the odd manner in which the people wore their hair. One type wore the hair standing up from the head at a length of several inches or more. It was trimmed with wonderful regularity and with mathematical accuracy. The hair was greased with coconut oil and painted red. At a distance it looked like a rising sun."

Another type of the inhabitants who wear their hair in an unusual fashion was described by Dr. Dorsey. "Starting from the forehead," he said, "the hair is brushed back over the scalp and hangs down to the waist. It is a perfect mass—an intricate jungle. I am sure it was impossible to comb, and it was impossible to run the fingers through it. At a distance it looks like a cap with the visor turned downward."

"One other odd type of hairdressing—coiffure, if you will—was observed on this visit. The hair was gathered at the front and back, then brought together above the head, where it was inclosed in a basket-like cylinder. The end spread out about two inches. Apparently these caps are never removed from the head."—Baltimore Sun.

"In Paris they have little white shops where you pay by the hour for what you drink."

"What do they call 'em?"

"Cabarets."

HERPICLE NOT A FAKE

Unsolicited Testimonials Tell of Its Superiority.

Alf. R. Kelley, residing at 2195 Delvidado street, San Francisco, Cal., writes the following:

"When I first purchased Herpicle I thought, like the majority of hair preparations, it would prove a fake. I am happy to state that, on the contrary, it is all, and even more, than you claim for it. Quite a number of barbers throughout the section in which I travel have called attention to the new hair sprouting out on my scalp, and inquired of me what I have been using. I tell them 'Herpicle,' and also give them your name and address."

ORIGIN OF PIE SUPPER.

Institution of First Magnitude in Hardin County, Ky.

Hardin county is the home of the pie supper. Eventually the pie supper is destined to become prevalent throughout these pie-loving United States, but at the present time the honor of discovery and the first enjoyment belongs to Hardin county, where the pie supper is an institution of first magnitude.

Whatever the purpose, or for what ever cause, the pie supper is the most effective means of arousing an interest and "raising the wind" in Hardin county. And small wonder. The same elements and conditions that have qualified the attractiveness of the pie supper in Hardin county are bound to succeed anywhere. They are founded deep as the inherent passions of the race, and while humanity endures their appeal cannot grow less.

Like all supreme discoveries, the component parts of the pie supper, except the ingredients, are extremely simple. Given an adequate number of charming girls who have been reared in the good old-fashioned way, and the success of the pie supper is assured. The girls make the pies, which are then gathered at some central point and then mentioned to the highest bidder.

"The pocket empties the clearest in Kentucky," sings Judge Mulligan of Lexington—which is evidence that the learned gentleman has attended a pie supper in Hardin county. What swain wouldn't empty his pockets, and the pockets of his relatives, neighbors and the stranger within his gates to bid in the pie made by the dainty fingers of the dearest girl in the world?

For years the pie supper, as a time honored custom, has been the reagent for the solution of church debts, library funds, missionary contributions, and similar problems in Hardin county. It has never failed, and in the nature of things it cannot fail until the streams run dry and the rocks melt in the sun.—Lexington Times.

Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion will digest any and all food at any and all times. Kodol is guaranteed to give prompt relief. Sold by all druggists.

Be of good courage; that is the main thing.—Thoreau.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

The interstate commerce commission's annual report, sent to congress today, corrects to some degree current impressions of railroad hard times for the year 1908, while admitting panic effects to the full.

1907 was the banner year in American railroad history in respect of gross and net earnings, and volume of traffic. Attention is directed to the fact, however, that the gross earnings of all railroads for 1908, although $164,464,941 less than the gross earnings for 1907 were $98,875,470 in excess of the gross earnings for 1906 and $342,158,231 in excess of those for 1905. The net earnings for 1908, although $111,051,906 less than for 1907 and $59,349,138 less than for 1906, were $37,658,504 in excess of those for 1905.

It is pointed out that a continuing business depression could not be held to justify the maintenance of particularly rates which are unreasonable in themselves or unduly discriminatory, since the right to equal treatment at reasonable rates does not depend upon the financial condition of the carrier.

A review is given of the commission's activity in prosecuting inquiries as to Harriman and Pacific railway activities, and the supreme court's upholding of Mr. Harriman in refusing to answer certain questions.

"In the opinion of this commission," says the report, "when Mr. Harriman assumes control of the Union Pacific railroad he ceases to be a private individual to that extent, and can no longer claim protection which, as a private person engaged in a strictly private pursuit, he might insist upon. The supreme court, however, is of the contrary opinion, and the commission can, of course, only suggest to congress that, if there is to be any full investigation by the federal authorities of these financial dealings, some action must be taken by the congress."

Since December 1, 1906, forty-six indictments for giving or receiving rebates have been returned in the various judicial districts of the country. In the same period forty-one prosecutions were concluded—twenty-four by convictions or pleas of guilty in the trial courts.

THE MINORITY'S FAILURE.

Congress is responsible to the people, not to the executive department; the honor of individual members concerns their constituents, not the president.

It matters not to the people back home, whether secret service men and postal inspectors have been trailing suspected congressmen, but it does matter whether those self-same congressmen do or do not enact laws for which the country is clamoring.

President Roosevelt is not more popular in every congressman's district than the congressman, because he has gotten the better of the congressman in a quarrel, which the congressman himself precipitated; but because he has been advocating measures, which appeal to the congressman's constituents and the congressman has been opposing them.

President Roosevelt has not quarreled with any reputable member of congress. Foraker defended negro soldiers, who shot into the homes of sleeping citizens of Brownsville, Texas, and he made a speech against paying detectives who extracted confessions from the soldiers. All the quarreling has been done by Foraker, and Foraker is a dead duck.

Congressman Tawney, with Cortelyou's letter in his pocket, concerning the secret service appropriation, misquoted that letter, and when Tawney's own branch of the federal government demanded that the president produce evidence that the principle objection to the secret service was the fear that detectives would shadow congressmen, the president produced the letter and quoted Tawney's own words from the Congressional Record and proved Tawney a liar. He showed that Speaker Cannon's private secretary had written a newspaper story on the subject, that was false; he quoted Swager Sherkey, of Louisville, on the subject, and proved that congress had been deceived by its own committee.

Senator Ben Tillman demanded that a fraud order should be made against a real estate firm of Oregon, which was using his name in connection with an attempt to put some cheap lands in that state on the market, and which he denounced on the floor of the senate as fraudulent, and a postoffice inspector found letters from Tillman to the concern, not only asking for land, but promising to use his branch of the federal government to foster the scheme.

It does seem that congress is getting the worst of all this, and it is so useless. Roosevelt, during his seven years in office, has proved himself the friend of the people. Congressmen stood his prodding as long as there were federal offices to be distributed in their districts, and they emitted some wholesome laws under the stimulus of hope. President Roosevelt has driven congress to doing its duty, like a man, who runs with a piece of meat in front of a pack of dogs, hitched to a sledge. He is out of meat and the dogs now are trying to eat him—only they are still hitched.

There are many things for congress to do. There is found the reason for all these resolutions, that mean nothing, and all this debate about the president. Congress doesn't want to do anything. The reactionaries are temporarily in the saddle, and the Democratic members, lacking the leadership of John Sharp Williams, are not smart enough to take advantage of the situation. They are joining the Aldrich-Foraker-Tawney crowd and adding their oratory to a harmless game of baiting the executive.

Wouldn't they be wise in taunting the majority with failure to attend to the people's business? Why doesn't the minority call attention to the important public questions to be threshed out in the halls of the legislature? There has been only one real man on the Democratic side in the lower house for the last several years and he is leaving them. That man is John Sharp Williams.

Williams always found his most efficient weapon was co-operation with Republicans when they were doing well, and rebuke when they were doing wrong. A good partisan, he never lost sight of the fact that he and the minority, as well as the majority, were there to do the will of the people, and he rightly esteemed it the province of the minority to be the majority's conscience. He was a thorn in the side of the majority but he accomplished much good, and forced them to unwilling obedience to the popular mandate more times than he was given credit for.

Yet, he met with constant opposition in the ranks of his own party. There was friction among the house Democrats. The man with whom he dealt couldn't see anything but surrender in co-operating with the majority. Their training and understanding taught them to oppose Republicans in all things, and this they wished to do right or wrong. Now, they are doing exactly what anti-administration Republican leaders in congress wish them to do. But they all will answer for their failure to do their duty to an authority higher than that of the president of the United States.

OUT OF THE SOIL.

Earth is forever queen—apotheosis of those commingled forces of nature which design to foster men. During the year of 1908 the valuation of farm products raised in the United States reached $7,775,000,000. No other observation on this page of this reflective journal is fraught with significance to equal the sentence just writ down. The valuation exceeds the 1907 farm yield by some $290,000,000. Not less impressive are the figures in more detail. Greatest crop of all was Indian corn—2,643,000,000 bushels, valued at $1,615,000,000.

Next came cotton, with a future more wonderful even than its past; then hay, wheat, oats, barley, rye, rice, and as the growing seasons bring new generations of farmers and fresh tillage of the soil, this country will weather the transient policies and incidents that we talk about. Mother Earth will rule. The dust of kings and presidents, of industry captains and philosophers, will serve as mud-pies for the child calmly playing in the sun.—Editorial in Collier's for January 9.

No man can take iniquity into his creed and keep it out of his character.

SOME STORIES

AROUND TOWN

Strains of "Old Kentucky Home" have an effect of tugging at the heart strings of every true blue Kentuckian. Should he be within the bounds of the Blue Grass state, the heart will heat faster when the music is played, but if it is his misfortune to be away from home and hear the music it will make any Kentuckian sad. Detective T. J. Moore, while waiting in the hall of the court house, told of his appreciation of Stephen Collins Foster's immortal song. Many years ago Mr. Moore accepted a position as traveling salesman for a large house and was assigned the state of Illinois. He started out on his first trip and when he reached Mt. Carmel he had splendid sales. However, being away from home a week had caused him to be a little blue, which was increased many times when the hand one evening struck up the familiar tune of "My Old Kentucky Home." Mr. Moore right then packed up his grip, paid his hotel bill and caught the first train for Paducah. "I have been away from home many times, and can listen to 'Dixie,' 'Yankee Doodle Dandy' and all other patriotic songs without a tremor, but when 'Old Kentucky Home' is played I just have to get back to old Kentucky," concluded Mr. Moore.

"The average business man needs nothing more than a broader imagination," said a well known business man, who is a frequent patron of the public library. "Most of the business men appreciate the fact that the daily grind of business tends to make them narrow, and in fact a little duller than they would otherwise be if they made an attempt to avoid this through some healthful recreation."

"About the best plan of recreation I know of is that followed by a friend of mine. Now he is head of a large business house, but he has adopted a course of reading, which includes geology and astronomy. His selections were not technical works, but popular writings dealing with the broader principles of the sciences, a study of the history of the earth with its record written on the rocks, carrying the mind back millions of years, and dealing with the crellings of the stars and the magnificent distance of 90,000,000 miles. The distance between the earth and the sun is but a celestial yardstick, certainly will make one realize the relative importance of the trifles of the day, and at the same time will develop a deep appreciation of the universe and of having a part in it."

All of the students of the High school are loyal to the blue and white of the school, but at the same time there is the keenest of rivalry existing between the members of the Junior A and B classes entertained in honor of the A senior class. The B seniors were not invited because the class will not be graduated until June, while the A seniors will be graduated in February. The B seniors were indignant at the omission and held up a reporter and included their names in the invitation. While the B seniors, smiled the members of the Junior class raved and the reporter had to stay in hiding for several days.

Sophy of Kravonia.

But Mistleth's escort were in no mood to wait for this operation, nor to stay and suffer the anger of the king. With their leader's fall the last of heart was out of them. Wrenching themselves free from such of the Volsenians as sought to arrest their flight, they turned their horses' heads and fled, one and all, for Slavna. The king's men attempted no pursuit. They clustered around the spot where he lay.

"I'm hit," he said to Sophy, "but not badly, I think."

From the castle door, down the causeway, came Marie Zerkovitch, weeping passionately, wringing her hands. The soldiers parted their close ranks to let her through. She came to the roadside where Sophy supported unconsolingly her head upon her knees. Sophy looked up and saw her. Marie did not speak.

She stood there, sobbing and wringing her hands over Sophy and the wounded king.

That afternoon, an hour after the first of the struggling rout of Mistleth's escort came in, King Alexis died suddenly. So ran the official notice, indorsed by Dr. Natcheff's high authority. The eulogies were in up to their necks.

They could not go back now. They must go through with it. Countess Ellenburg took to her knees. Stenovsky and Stafultz held long conversations. Every part of tactical importance in the city was occupied by troops. Slavna was silent, expectant, anxious.

Markart woke at 5 o'clock, heavy of head, dry in the mouth, sick and ill. He found himself no longer in the king's suit, but in one of the apartments which Stafultz had occupied. He was all alone. The door stood open. He understood that he was no more a prisoner. He knew that the king was dead.

But who else was dead, and who alive, and who king to Slavna? He forced himself to rise and hurried through the corridors of the palace. They were deserted. There was nobody to hinder him, nobody of whom to ask a question. He saw a deceiver of brandy standing near the door of one room and drank freely of it. Then he made his way into the garden. He saw men streaming over the bridge toward Slavna and hastened after them as quickly as he could. His head was still in a maze. He remembered nothing after drinking the glass of wine, which Lepage the valet had given him, but he was possessed by a strong excitement, and he followed obstinately in the wake of the throng which set from the palace and the suburbs into Slavna.

The streets were quiet. Soldiers occupied the corners of the ways. They looked curiously at Markart's pale face and disordered uniform. A dull roar came from the direction of St. Michael's square, and thither Markart aimed his course. He found all one side of the square full of a dense crowd, swaying, jostling, talking. On the other side troops were massed. In an open space in front of the troops, facing the crowd, was Colonel Stafultz and by his side a little boy on a white pony.

Markart was too far off to hear what Stafultz said when he began to speak—nay, the cheers of the troops behind the colonel came so sharp on his words as almost to drown them, and after a moment's hesitation, as it seemed to Markart, the crowd of people on the other side of the square echoed back the acclamations of the soldiers.

All Countess Ellenburg's ambitions were staked. For Stenovsky and Stafultz it was a matter of life itself now, so daringly had they raised their hands against King Seraphus. Countess Ellenburg had indeed prayed, and now prayed all alone in a deserted palace, but not one of the three had hesitated. At the head of a united army, in the name of a united people, Stafultz had demanded the proclamation of young Alexis as king. For an hour Stenovsky had made a show of demurring; then he bowed to the national will. That night young Alexis enjoyed more honor than he had asked of Lepage the valet—he was called not prince, but majesty. He was king in Slavna, and the first work to which they set his childish hand was the proclamation of a state of siege.

Slavna chose him willingly or because it must at the bidding of the soldiers, but Volsen was of another mind. They would not have the German woman's son to reign over them. Into that faithful city the wounded king threw himself, with all his friends.

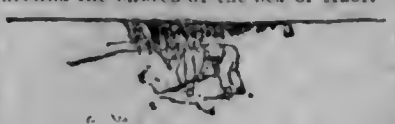

The body of Mistleth lay all day and all night by the wayside. Next morning at dawn the king's grooms came back from Volsen and buried it under a clump of trees by the side of the hue running down to Lake Talt. Their curses were the only words spoken over the grave, and they flattened the earth level with the ground again that none might know where the man rested who had lifted his hand against their master.

The king was carried to Volsen sore stricken. They did not know whether he would live or die. He had a dangerous wound in the lungs, and to make matters worse, the surgical skill available at Volsen was very primitive.

But in that regard fortune brought aid and brought also to Sophy a strange conjuncture of the new life with the old. The laird of the inn sent word to Lankovitch that two foreign gentlemen had arrived at his house that afternoon and that the passport of one of them described him as a surgeon. The laird had told him how things stood, and he was anxious to render help.

It was Basil Williamson, Dunstanbury and he, accompanied by Henry Brown, Dunstanbury's servant, had reached Volsen that day on their return from a tour in the Crimea and around the shores of the sea of Azof.

STONE USED BY MAN IN GLACIAL PERIOD FOUND.

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 13.—The discovery of what is claimed to be a paleolithic stone near Wadsworth has led Prof. G. Frederick Wright, geologist, and president of the State Archaeological society, to declare that Medina county was the home of paleolithic man.

Prof. Wright and Prof. Henson, him to Hiram and will return to Wadsworth next spring, he says, with government geologists to continue his researches.

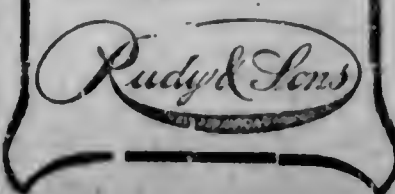

Prof. Wright and Prof. Henson, of Oberlin college, declared that the find of the paleolithic at Wadsworth is one of the most important discoveries in America, fixing the age of human life on the American continent.

It is Prof. Wright's belief that one time the site of Wadsworth was covered with a large glacier, which was a mile high and extended to Millersburg.

The paleolithic stone found near Wadsworth is an elliptical-shaped flint stone weighing about a half or three-quarters of a pound, and is a fine specimen of one of the instruments used by man during the glacial period.

BEES HOLD A STREET

Honey Makers' Fortress of Which Passersby Are Wary.

If you walk down the east side of Filmore street, about midway between Broadway and Vallejo, in its most aristocratic neighborhood, you will see a bank of clay sloping upward from the sidewalk, and if you look close you will see something that will make you give that locality a wide berth the next time you take a stroll in that direction.

That particular clay bank, innocent looking as it is, harbors a strong and lively colony of humble bees of the barf sting variety, and no resident of Filmore and Broadway or Vallejo streets cares to approach it unwarily.

The bank is nearly thirty feet long and is thickly dotted with small holes which are the entrances to the honey-laden cones concealed within. At all hours the "little busy bees" are seen coming and going, buzzing in the holes and out again, very much concerned about his work and paying small attention to an onlooker unless he tempts Providence by too close an

Personally appeared before me this Jan. 1, 1909, R. D. MacMillen, business manager of The Sun, who affirms that the above statement of the circulation of The Sun for the month of December, 1908, is true to the best of his knowledge and belief.
My commission expires January 10, 1912.

Daily Thought.

Be of good courage; that is the main thing.—Thoreau.

The Oklahoma legislators have cut out "Honorable" as a prefix to their names, out of desire to retain the original meaning of the word in its purity, no doubt.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

The interstate commerce commission's annual report, sent to congress
today, corrects to some degree current impressions of railroad hard-times for the year 1908, while admitting public effects to the full.

1907 was the banner year in American railroad history in respect of gross and net earnings, and volume of traffic. Attention is directed to the fact, however, that the gross earnings of all railroads for 1908, although $164,464,941 less than the gross earnings for 1907 were $98,875,470
in excess of the net earnings for 1906 and $342,158,231 in excess of those for 1905. The net earnings for 1908, although $111,051,906 less than for 1907 and $59,349,138 less than for 1906, were $37,658,504 in excess of those for 1906.

It is pointed out that a continuing business depression could not be held to justify the maintenance of particular rates which are unreasonable in themselves or unduly discriminatory, since the right to equal treatment at reasonable rates does not depend upon the financial condition of the carrier.

A review is given of the commission's activity in prosecuting inquiries
as to Harriman and Pacific railway activities, and the supreme court's upholding of Mr. Harriman in refusing to answer certain questions.

"In the opinion of this commission," says the report, "when Mr.
Harriman assumes control of the Union Pacific railroad he ceases to be a private individual to that extent,
and as no longer claim protection
which, as a private person engaged in a strictly private pursuit, he might insist upon. The supreme court, however, is of the contrary opinion, and the commission can, of course, only suggest to congress that, if there is to be any full investigation by the federal authorities of these financial dealings, some action must be taken by the congress."

Since December 1, 1906, forty-six indictments for giving or receiving rebates have been returned in the various judicial districts of the country. In the same period forty-one prosecutions were concluded—twenty-four by convictions or plea of guilty in the trial courts.

THE MINORITY'S FAILURE.

Congress is responsible to the people, not to the executive department;
the honor of individual members concerns their constituents, not the president.

It matters not to the people back home, whether secret service men
and postal inspectors have been trailing suspected congressmen, but it does matter whether those self-same congressmen do or do not enact laws for which the country is clamoring.

President Roosevelt is not more popular in every congressman's district than the congressman, because he has gotten the better of the congressman in a quarrel, which the congressman himself precipitated; but because he has been advocating measures, which appeal to the congressman's constituents and the congressman has been opposing them.

President Roosevelt has not quarreled with any reputable member of congress. Foraker defended negro soldiers, who shot into the homes of sleeping citizens of Brownsville, Texas, and he made a speech against paying detectives who extracted confessions from the soldiers. All the quarreling has been done by Foraker,
and Foraker is a dead duck.

Congressman Tawney, with Cortel-you's letter in his pocket, concerning the secret service appropriation, misquoted that letter, and when Taw-ney's own branch of the federal government demanded that the president
produce evidence that the principle objection to the secret service was the fear that detectives would shadow congressmen, the president produced the letter and quoted Tawney's own words from the Congressional Record and proved Tawney a liar. He showed that Speaker Cannon's private secretary had written a newspaper story on the subject, that was false; he quoted Swager Sherley, of Louisville,
on the subject, and proved that congress had been deceived by its own committee.

Senator Ben Tillman demanded that a fraud order should be made against a real estate firm of Oregon,
which was using his name in connection with an attempt to put some cheap lands in that state on the market, and which he denounced on the floor of the senate as fraudulent, and a postoffice inspector found letters from Tillman to the concern, not only asking for land, but promising to use his branch of the federal government to foster the scheme.

It does seem that congress is getting the worst of all this, and it is so useless. Roosevelt, during his seven years in office, has proved himself the friend of the people. Congressmen stood his prodding as long as there were federal offices to be distributed in their districts, and they enacted some wholesome laws under the stimulus of hope. President Roosevelt has driven congress to do its duty, like a man, who runs with a piece of meat in front of a pack of dogs, hitched to a sledge.
He is out of meat and the dogs now are trying to eat him—only they are still hitched.

There are many things for congress to do. Therein is found the reason for all these resolutions, that mean nothing, and all this debate about the president. Congress doesn't want to do anything. The reactionaries are temporarily in the saddle, and the Democratic members,
lacking the leadership of John Sharp Williams, are not smart enough to take advantage of the situation. They are joining the Aldrich-Foraker-Tawney crowd and adding their oratory to a harmless game of bailing the executive.

Wouldn't they be wise in taunting
the majority with failure to attend to the people's business? Why doesn't the minority call attention to the important public questions to be threwed out in the halls of the legislature? There has been only one real man on the Democratic side in the lower house for the last several years and he is leaving them. That man is John Sharp Williams.

Williams always found his most efficient weapon was co-operation with Republicans when they were doing well, and rebuke when they were doing wrong. A good partisan, he never lost sight of the fact that he and the minority, as well as the majority, were there to do the will of the people, and he rightly esteemed it the province of the minority to be the majority's conscience. He was a thorn in the side of the majority but he accomplished much good, and forced them to nonwilling obedience to the popular mandate more times than he was given credit for.

Yet, he met with constant opposition in the ranks of his own party.
There was friction among the house Democrats. The manliness with whom he dealt couldn't see anything but surrender in co-operating with the majority. Their training and understanding taught them to oppose Republicans in all things, and this they wished to do right or wrong. Now, they are doing exactly what anti-industrialism Republican leaders in congress wish them to do. But they all will answer for their failure to do their duty to an authority higher than that of the president of the United States.

OUT OF THE SOIL.

Earth is forever queen—apotheosis
of those commingled forces of nature which design to foster men. During the year of 1908 the valuation of farm products reaped in the United States reached $7,778,000,000. No other observation on this page of this reflective journal is fraught with significance to equal the sentence just written down. The valuation exceeds the 1907 farm yield by some $290,- 000,000. Not less impressive are the figures in more detail. Greatest crop of all was Indian corn—2,643,000,000 bushels, valued at $1,615,000,000.

Next came cotton, with a future more wonderful even than its past; then hay, wheat, oats, barley, rye, rice. As long as the rolling seasons bring new generations of farmers and fresh illusions of the soil, this country will weather the transient policies and incidents that we talk about. Mother Earth will rule. The dust of kings and presidents, of industry capitalists and philosophers, will serve as mud-pie for the child calmly playing in the sun.—Editorial in Collier's for January 9.

No man can take iniquity into his creed and keep it out of his character.

SOME STORIES
AROUND TOWN

Strains of "Old Kentucky Home"
have an effect of tugging at the heart strings of every true blue Kentuckian. Should he be within the bounds of the Blue Grass state, this heart will beat faster when the music is played, but if it is his misfortune to be away from home and hear the music it will make any Kentuckian sad. Detective T. J. Moore, while writing in the hall of the court house,
told of his appreciation of Stephen Collins Foster's immortal song. Many years ago Mr. Moore accepted a position as traveling salesman for a large house and was assigned the state of Illinois. He started out on his first trip and when he reached Mt. Carmel he had splendid sales. However, being away from home a week had caused him to be a little blue, which was increased many times when the band one evening struck up the familiar tune of "My Old Kentucky Home." Mr. Moore right then packed up his grip, paid his hotel bill and caught the first train for Paducah. "I have been away from home many times, and can listen to "Dixie,"
"Yankee Doodle Dandy" and all other patriotic songs without a tremor, but when "Old Kentucky Home" is played
I just have to get back to old Kentucky," concluded Mr. Moore.

"The average business man needs
nothing more than a broader imagination," said a well known business man who is a frequent patron of the public library. "Most of the business men appreciate the fact that the daily grind of business tends to make them
narrow, and in fact a little duller than they would otherwise be if they made an attempt to avoid this through some healthful recreation."

"About the best plan of recreation
I know of is that followed by a friend of mine. Now he is head of a large business house, but he has adopted a course of reading, which includes geology and astronomy. His selections were not technical works, but popular writings dealing with the broader principles of the sciences,
a study of the history of the earth
with its record written on the rocks, carrying the mind back millions of years, and dealing with the circlings
of the stars and the magnificent distance of 90,000,000 miles. The distance between the earth and the sun is but a celestial yardstick, certainly will make one realize the relative importance of the trifles of the day, and at the same time will develop a deep appreciation of the universe and of having a part in it."

All of the students of the High school are loyal to the blue and white of the school, but at the same time there is the keenest of rivalry existing between the classes. Recently the members of the Junior A and B classes entertained in honor of the A senior class. The B seniors were not invited because the class will not be graduated until June, while the A seniors will be graduated in February. The B seniors were indignant at the omission and held up a reporter and included their names in the invitation. While the B seniors smiled the members of the Junior class raved and the reporter had to stay in hiding for several days.

But Mistle's escort were in no mood
to wait for this operation, nor to stay and suffer the anger of the king. With their leader's fall the last of heart was out of them. Wrenching themselves free from such of the Volsenians as sought to arrest their flight, they turned their horses' heads and fled, one and all, for Slavna. The king's men attempted no pursuit. They clustered around the spot where he lay.

"In life," he said to Sophy, "but not badly, I think."

From the castle door, down the causeway, came Marie Zerkovitch, weeping passionately, wringing her hands. The soldiers turned their close ranks to let her through. She came to the roadside where Sophy supported Mistle's head upon her knees. Sophy looked up and saw her. Marie did not speak.

She stood there, sobbing
and wringing her hands
over Sophy and the wounded king.

That afternoon, an hour after the first of the stragglers of Mistle's escort came in, King Alexis died suddenly. So ran the official notice, indorsed by Dr. Natchev's high authority. The cotter were in up to their necks.

They could not go back now. They must go through with it. Countess El-lenburg took to her knees. Stenovic and Stanitz held long conversations.
Every point of tactical importance in the city was occupied by troops. Slavna was silent, expectant, curious.

Markart woke at 5 o'clock, heavy of head, dry in the mouth, sick and ill.
He found himself no longer in the king's suit, but in one of the apartments which Stanitz had occupied.
He was all alone. The door stood open.
He understood that he was no more a prisoner. He knew that the king was dead.

But who else was dead, and who alive, and who king in Slavna?
He forced himself to rise and hurried through the corridors of the palace. They were deserted. There was nobody to hinder him, nobody of whom to ask a question. He saw a decanter of brandy standing near the door of one room and drank freely of it. Then he made his way into the garden. He saw men streaming over the bridge toward Slavna and hastened after them as quickly as he could. His head was still in a maze. He remembered nothing after drinking the glass of wine
which Lepage the valet had given him,
but he was possessed by a strong excitement, and he followed obstinately
in the wake of the throng which set from the palace and the suburbs into Slavna.

The streets were quiet. Soldiers occupied the corners of the ways. They looked curiously at Markart's pale face and disordered uniform. A dull roar came from the direction of St. Michael's square, and thither Markart aimed his course. He found all one side of the square full of a dense crowd, swaying, jostling, talking. On the other side troops were massed. In an open space
in front of the troops, facing the crowd,
was Colonel Stanitz and by his side a little boy on a white pony.

Markart was too far off to hear what Stan-itz said when he began to speak—nay, the cheers of the troops which the colonel came to speak—nay, the words as almost to drown them, and after a moment's hesitation, as it seemed to Mark-art, the crowd of people on the other side of the square echoed back, the acclamations of the soldiers.

All Countess Ellenburg's ambitions were at stake. For Stenovic and Stanitz it was a matter of life itself now,
so daringly had they raised their hands against King Sergius. Countess El-lenburg had indeed prayed, and now prayed all alone in a deserted palace, but not one of the three had hesitated. At the head of a united army, in the name of a united people, Stanitz had demanded the proclamation of young Alexis as king. For an hour Stenovic had made a show of demurring; then he bowed to the national will. That night young Alexis enjoyed more honor
than he had asked of Lepage the valet
—he was called not prince, but majesty.
He was king in Slavna, and the first work to which they set his childish hand was the proclamation of a state of siege.

Slavna chose him willingly or because it must at the bidding of the soldiers, but Volsen was of another mind. They would not have the German woman's son to reign over them.
Into that faithful city the wounded
king threw himself, with all his friends.
The body of Mistle lay all day and all night by the wayside. Next morning at dawn the king's grooms came back from Volsen and buried it under a clump of trees by the side of the lane running down to Lake Talt. Their curses were the only words spoken over the grave, and they flattened the earth
level with the ground again that none might know where the man reared who had lifted his hand against their master.

The king was carried to Volsen sore stricken. They did not know whether he would live or die. He had a dangerous wound in the lungs, and, to make matters worse, the surgical skill

available at Volsen was very primitive.

But in that regard fortune brought aid and brought also to Sophy a strange conjecture of the new life with the old.
The landlord of the inn sent word to Jankovitch that two foreign gentlemen had arrived at his house that afternoon and that the passport of one of them described him as a surgeon.
It was Basil Williamson. Dumstanbury and he, accompanied by Henry Brown, Dumstanbury's servant, had reached Volsen that day on their return from a tour in the Crimea and around the shores of the sea of Azof.

STONE USED BY MAN IN

GLACIAL PERIOD FOUND.
Akron, Ohio, Jan. 1.—The discovery of what is claimed to be a paleo-lithic stone near Wadsworth has led Prof. G. Frederick Wright, geologist, and president of the State
Archaeological society, to declare that Medina county was the home of paleo-lithic.

Prof. Wright and Prof. Bronson
him to Baltimore and will return to Wadsworth next spring, he says,
with government geologists to continue his researches.

Prof. Wright and Prof. Bronson,
of Oberlin college, declared that the find of the paleolithic at Wadsworth is one of the most important discoveries in America, fixing the age of human life on the American continent.

It is Prof. Wright's belief that one time the site of Wadsworth was covered with a large glacier, which was a mile high and extended to Millersburg.

The paleolithic stone found near Wadsworth is an elliptical-shaped flint stone weighing about a half or three-quarters of a pound, and is a fine specimen of one of the instruments used by man during the glacial period.

$161,018,000 FOR PENSIONS.

Nearly Four Billion Dollars Has Been Expended in Cause.

Washington, Jan. 14.—An appropriation of $161,018,000 for pensions was agreed on today by the committee on appropriations in the drafting of the annual pension appropriation bill. This amount is over $2,000,000 less than the appropriation last year which was $163,053,000. In the report to the house it will be shown that the republic has expended since its beginning $3,761,108,800 in pensions. The committee inserted in the bill a provision that the eighteen pension agencies throughout the country be reduced to one, to be located in Washington. Congress has twice failed to agree to such a proposal.

Hope is also expressed for an immediate solution of the question between Turkey and Austria-Hungary over Bosnia and Herzegovina and a favorable issue in the negotiations between Turkey and Bulgaria.

CORRALING THE TRAMPS.

New York to Experiment With Farm Colonies of These Society Members.

There is about to be made a very interesting experiment in New York. The legislature is to be asked to appropriate $750,000 for the purchase and establishment of three farm colonies for tramps. It is proposed to make a study of the tramp nuisance have an idea of how costly the tramp is to society. He is estimated to number more than half a million. The railroads suffer greatly by reason of the tramp. The number of trespassers killed annually on American railroads exceeds the combined total of passengers and trainmen killed annually. Major Pangborn, representing President Murray of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, states at a recent meeting of the national conference of charities and corrections at Minneapolis that railroads often maintain along their right of way private graveyards in which to bury vagrants killed by trains while trespassing. According to Mr. Pangborn, the estimate of $25,000,000 annual loss is a conservative one. No wonder the railroads are heartily encouraging the New York plan of corralling the tramp and studying him.

TOBACCO

TO

Bohmer's Warehouse

9th & Harrison, Paducah, Ky. Old Phone 72

Empty hogheads furnished free to parties wishing to ship their tobacco by rail or river

Tobacco is unloaded in large, flat baskets, each grade to itself, weighed and receipt given owner, showing number of draft and pounds thereof. A corresponding ticket is placed on each pile. The highest bid is written on ticket and, should owner accept same, by presenting at office receipt previously given, the cash is handed over.

Should the bid offered not be satisfactory, the tobacco can be offered the next day or at any other time thereafter.

It costs absolutely nothing to offer your tobacco unless bid is accepted, in which case we charge 15 cents per hundred pounds and 2 cents on the dollar.

The greatest demand among manufacturers and dealers is for loose tobacco and, since it will bring more money offered loose, why go to the expense of having prized, stored, insured, inspected and looked after?

You will get more money for your tobacco when offered to the highest bidder in open competition with twenty-five buyers trying to buy than when you expect or require one buyer to buy millions of pounds without competition at a round price.

"OURS A UNION OF INTELLECTS"

Declares a Kentucky Woman Who Deserted Husband.

Joins Silk Salesman in New York City—Was Wife of Eminent Merchant for Few Weeks.

THEN FLEW TO HER AFFINITY.

New York, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Jane Parks Caldwell, the handsome Kentucky woman who attempted a trial marriage with Charles A. Caldwell, of Eminence, Ky., admitted to the Courier-Journal correspondent, who found her at a boarding house at 44 West Seventeenth street today, that after a marital experience that began on Christmas day she eloped the day after New Year's with William Milne, the head of the sales department of the lace firm of Clough, Pike & Co., of 55 White Street, this city.

Milne a Married Man.
Milne is an elderly Scotchman with a wife and children in Haworth, N. J., but that didn't make any difference when he met the dark-eyed Kentucky beauty in Cincinnati a year before she became engaged to Caldwell, who keeps a department store and is a raiser of blooded stock.

At the boarding house Mrs. Caldwell was registered—she declared by a strange mistake—as "Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Parks, of Kansas City." The landlady, when the Courier-Journal correspondent inquired for Mrs. Caldwell and finally identified her as "Mrs. Parks," said that "Mr. Parks, a fine-looking elderly man with a gray mustache and gray-sprinkled hair" had left the house a short time before.

Union of Intellectuals.
"Ridiculous," said Mrs. Caldwell, or Mrs. Parks, as she insists she shall now be called. "I am stopping here alone. Mr. Milne, well, yes, I'll admit I love him, but ours is a union of intellectuals—you understand? There is nothing coarse or worldly in it. His wife understands it perfectly, too."

"Mr. Milne did send me a telegram asking me to meet him in Cincinnati after I had written him that my married life of a few days was miserable with a man to whom I could never be a wife, but since we came to New York I have not seen him more than twice, when I dined with him."

"You see, he promised to get me some sort of life work here. A nurse or a newspaper woman, or something like that. Some sort of a career. Pleasure me," said Mrs. Caldwell, dark eyes flashed, "the wife of a country storekeeper."

Mrs. Caldwell is in appearance nothing but "the typical wife of a country storekeeper," she says her husband wanted to make her. Today she wore a dark brown silk gown of pronounced décolleté cut on which, in appropriate places, flashed diamonds in various settings. The diamonds she admits were the gift of Caldwell, but she says he can have them back if he sends her twelve trunks full of clothes.

Soil Above Groceries.
"You see, I only married Caldwell after he had pestered me for more than a year," she explained. "I met him about the same time as Billy Milne, but I loved Billy and never loved Caldwell. I had a soul above groceries and dry goods, I reckon."

"I whispered to Caldwell while we were being married, 'I can never be a wife to you; I love another man.' He only laughed and said, 'That's your sentiment,' but now I guess he thinks different."

Under ordinary circumstances, the life of a wooden boat is four times that of steel.

McPHERSON'S DRUG STORE.

Heaping Coals of Fire

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

The Rev. Marcus Butterfield tolled ardently for years to pay off the mortgage of St. Mark's church. At last he got the mortgage down to $5,000, and there it stuck. The rector was getting on in years and was not capable of the energetic efforts he had formerly made.

Mr. Butterfield's congregation never had a thought of being dissatisfied with him till Miss Amelia Telling, of twenty-five years old, with three short curly curls on each temple, told them they were. Miss Telling made up her mind that she would undermine Mr. Butterfield with a view to securing a man in his place who could raise the required $5,000. When Miss Telling determined to accomplish anything she usually did it. She began by calling Mrs. Beeswick's attention to the fact that the pastor's voice was becoming husky.

Miss Telling's next move was to remark to Mrs. Beeswick that the pastor's wife seemed to have lost interest in the welfare of the congregation. Mrs. Beeswick hadn't thought of it, but now it was mentioned she remembered that Mrs. Butterfield had not been in her house for a year. True, Mrs. Butterfield had been ill most of that time, but the remark set Mrs. Beeswick to thinking. She mentioned the matter to several members of the congregation, and all but one said they, too, had the same complaint to make.

Miss Telling, following up her initial efforts with "little drops of water, little grains of sand," in time arrayed a party behind her in the matter of getting rid of the rector. Her group finally comprised two-thirds of the congregation, while the other third were equally determined to keep him. Mr. Butterfield finally learned of the movement—that is, he learned that "a few of his parishioners" were anxious to supplant him with a better man. He promptly tendered his resignation. He was astonished that it was accepted by a vote of 100 to 50.

If there was anything the church was proud of it was its treatment of "their beloved pastor" when "he left them." They gave him half a year's salary and resolved to call on him for an occasional sermon, for each of which he was to be paid $15. "Could anything be more generous?" remarked Miss Telling to Mrs. Abernethy, Mrs. Abernethy was of the party of the pastor's supporters.

"Very generous," she replied. "Just think, he has been even better treated than was our Saviour."

"What do you mean?"

"He hasn't been crucified."

Mr. Butterfield found it impossible to get another church. He had none of the requisites for a new position. He was too old; his voice was impaired; he lacked vim. Most of the churches looking for a rector were languishing and wanted an energetic young man with business talent to build them up. Simple piety would not pay off mortgages. He got some work to do for a publisher of religious literature, but the pay was inconsiderable. He moved into a cottage and kept his family from starving as best he could.

During Mr. Butterfield's prosperity he kept a horse and buggy. One morning when his friends were gone and his larder empty he drove his rig into the city to sell it. He was turning a corner when an automobile coming in the opposite direction ran into his buggy, smashed it, but left the clergyman unhurt.

"You idiot!" exclaimed the man driving the automobile. "Why did you turn to the left?"

"Because," gasped poor Butterfield, "I supposed you wanted room to swing round the corner."

A crowd collected. Mr. Butterfield wore a clerical garb, and all saw that he was an inoffensive clergyman. They began to hoot at the auto man to pay for the damage he had done.

"All right," he said. "I wish to do what is just and liberal, though I'm a lawyer, and it wouldn't cost me anything to defend a suit." Then, taking out his pocketbook, he drew a card from it and a pencil and prepared to make a memorandum.

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Butterfield."

"First name?"

"Marcus."

The man looked up at the clergyman and surveyed him critically.

"Any other name?"

"Antonius."

"By thunder!" exclaimed the auto man.

"What's the matter?" asked the clergyman, surprised.

"You are son of Charles Stanton Butterfield?"

"Yes."

"Nephew of Anna Maria Stanton?"

"I believe I had an aunt of that name."

"Well, my friend, all I have to say is that this is a lucky smashup for you. I've had $200,000 for you for four years, left you by Anna Stanton. I've been looking for you all over the world. If you were not found within five years after the bequest it was to go to charity."

Mr. Butterfield, amid the cheers of the crowd, got into the automobile, was driven to a distant city and received his legacy.

Then what did he do? He astonished his former congregation by paying off the mortgage on the church.

"I do think," said Miss Telling to Mrs. Abernethy, "that man is a real Christian."

"No one will ever accuse you of that," was the unvarnished response.

HEATRICE TUCKER.

"What would you do if a band of brigands should suddenly confront you?"

"Light the gas if it was a dream, and talk to my neighbor if it was a comic opera."—Washington Herald.

LASTING FRIENDSHIP.

Chums As School Boys, Men Still Friends When Nearing Nineties.

Chums when boys at school, five men, none of whom is younger than 82, are still fast friends and meet daily to discuss the topics of the day, tell stories and exchange reminiscences.

They all live in Portsmouth, N. H., and all were pupils of the old Portsmouth school.

Daniel Mason, one of the oldest of the five, is one of Portsmouth's most active residents, although he has passed the 87 mark. He is a native of the N. H., but has resided in Portsmouth since he was a year old. He is a joiner by trade, and in his younger days got out the patterns and models for some of the best ships that were built in Portsmouth. In 1866 he engaged in the milling business and continued until 1898, when he retired. He is the oldest ex-freeman in Portsmouth and probably the oldest Old Fellow in New Hampshire, having become a member 45 years ago.

J. Wiley Coleman is also an old-time carpenter, and for many years worked on the ships at the Portsmouth navy yard. He also followed the sea, but says that the fear of being wrecked compelled him to give it up.

George P. Abbott, another of the group of five, is one of the best known public men of Portsmouth. He was born November 15, 1821. At the age of 15 he went to Boston, where he learned the trade of carpenter. Completing a full apprenticeship he returned to his native city and took up the work at the navy yard, where he held a responsible position for years, retiring only a few years ago because of his age.

Samuel A. Hawkes is a veteran engineer, and there are few men who can challenge his record. He learned the trade of a machinist at Pawtucket and first took the throttle of a locomotive on the Eastern railroad on a run between Salem and Lawrence. He was the man selected by the officials of the road to run a mail train from Boston to Portsmouth when the government offered the carrying of the mail to the company who would make the best time. Hawkes is 82 years of age and handled a locomotive for nearly 60 years without knowing an accident to person or property.

Edward J. Moulton, born January 12, 1824, also started life as a carpenter and followed the trade until a few years ago. When the Pacific slope attracted thousands from the east by the gold fever, Mr. Moulton was one of the first to leave New Hampshire, and is today one of the few survivors of the gallant "Forty-niners." He served the city as alderman during the civil war and many times as assessor. He has filled the place as deacon at the Universalist church for a period of 30 years.—Boston Post.

Largest Irrigated Tract in World.

America has now triumphed over Egypt and India in holding what will soon be the largest irrigated tract of desert land in the world. This is what is known as the Twin Falls Country, in the still new and young but ardently enthusiastic state of Idaho. The Idaho men "mean business," and the story of the Twin Falls Country is worth telling.

means. The game of bridge requires not only tables, chairs and banks of cards, but houses—not only houses, but homes, and a more substantial establishment and well-organized society—and all this you will find in the town of Twin Falls, with its 4,000 inhabitants, an infant town three years old, but a most prosperous infant and one of the marvels of modern American life. Three years is a short time in which to enable men and women, however determined and capable, to build and inhabit a town with waterworks, a fine school house costing $51,000, the telephone, telegraph and electric railway of every city, hospitals and hotels, many rows of young trees and a park laid out for future embellishment. The Egyptians and Indians, who have had rather a good start of us in the matter of time and learning, would marvel somewhat at this youthful city.—Harper's Weekly

DEEP SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup. (Cut This Out.) From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and toned up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

Before a good crowd the season of the city basketball league opened last night with a double-header in the Eagles' gymnasium. The games were interesting throughout, and the fans rooted hard for the teams of their choice. The interest in games was intense, and both games were good considering the amount of practice the players have had. No special mention is made of the players but several members of the teams showed good judgment in throwing for baskets.

The first game was between the Chess, Checker and Whist quintet and the Elks five, and the C. C. & W. walked away with the game to the tune of 25 to 5. Although beaten the Elks made the Chess boys work to win. The second game between the High School and the D. A. D. was better as the score was closer, but the High School lost by a score of 15 to 9. The teams lined up: Elks—Goodman, c.; Robertson and Hughes, g.; Hemminger and Sutton, f. C. C. & W.—Singleton, c.; Fisher, f.; Puryear and St. John, g.

At Hard Labor.
That Heerbohm Tree, the player, has a caustic wit is evidenced by an incident wherein he and an unknown playwright figured.

The writer had obtained permission to read his offering to Tree. The actor evinced no great degree of enthusiasm, either during or after the reading, but he did take the manuscript, upon which he scribbled hastily a few suggestions for its betterment.

"See here, Mr. Tree," was the indignant ejaculation of the ambitious playwright, "it's hardly fair of you to dispose of my work in this summary and nonchalant fashion. 'I'd have you know that this play has cost me a year's hard labor!'"

"So?" queried Tree. "My dear fellow, any impartial judge would give you at least five!"—Harper's Weekly.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Jonty G. Molan, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs. Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letters strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

FRIENDLESS

HOME MAKES REPORT FOR YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31.

Contributions From Generous People Supplement Meager Income of the Institution.

On January 1, 1909, there remained in the Home 35 inmates, 54 admitted during the year, making a total of 89. Of this number 44 children have been secured homes in good families; others have been sent to guardians or friends. Employment has been secured for a number of women. One death has occurred, that of a young baby, practically dead when brought to the Home.

At present there are 49 children to be cared for, and the house is taxed to its utmost capacity. The present building is wholly inadequate to the growing demands and more room and more money is needed if the work is to be successfully carried on. The amount appropriated by the council and other contributions amount to $2,404.64. Of this $2,259.37 was expended.

This is the actual amount of money expended, but it would have been insufficient without contributions from the merchants, grocers, butchers, bakers, sewing guild and individuals, whose generosity has enabled the board to meet all demands. We hope that the public will be as liberal in the future as in the past.
MRS. CHAS. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

MIDDLE AGED MAN.

He Thinks It Rheumatism That Is Bothering Him and Not Gout.

"Can anybody tell me," said the middle-aged man, "the difference between rheumatism and gout? Now, not being very well versed in medical science, knowing very little in fact about osteology or therapeutics or anatomy, materia medica or pharmacopeia, I wouldn't undertake, myself, offhand to say, but in a general way I would say that gout is an ailment that attacks the rich and rheumatism, the poor; and, being not what you would call a rich man, I suppose what I've got is rheumatism."

"I have read in novels and seen pictures of portly gentlemen of middle age or rather more who eat in great easy chairs and with one foot all swathed up in bandages stretched out in front of them supported on a footrest. This is the old gentleman, living in a fine old manor house or in a splendid mansion in town, who is described in the novel as being testy and choleric—choleric, as I understand it, meaning not that he has cholera or anything of that sort, but an uneven temper; and this old gentleman with foot thus done up in bandages and supported on a footrest has gout."

"But several of my symptoms are different. I don't live in an old manor house, nor in a mansion in town; and however, disposed I might be to be testy and choleric, I have to keep my temper, and I don't swathe my foot in bandages and recline it on a foot rest. I have to keep more or less on the move."

"So I suppose that in the absence of the familiar gout symptoms we might safely diagnose my case as one of just plain rheumatism; but I guess my rheumatism hurts me about as much as the gout of our testy and choleric old friend hurts him."—New York Sun.

Many a man thinks he is charitable because he gives advice.

BIG INCREASE IN POSTAL EXPENSES

Require 12 Million More For Fiscal Year.

To Raise the Salaries of Clerks and Carriers Also Increase Their Number.

APPROPRIATION IS $231,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 14.—It will require $231,000,000 to run the postal service during the fiscal year of 1910, according to the decision reached by the house committee on postoffice and postroads today.

Recommendation of an appropriation of this amount will be included in the report the committee will submit to the house shortly.

The amount is an increase of about twelve million dollars over the appropriation for the present fiscal year. Among the changes recommended are the following:

A provision in the bill agreed upon by the committee will promote 50 per cent. of the eligible $1,150 clerks and carriers to $1,200; provision is made for the promotion of $1,200 apartment car clerks to $1,300; an increase of $1,111,000 for the extension of rural service is provided.

Additional clerks are authorized to number 1,260; additional carriers 1,400; railway mail service, 950.

Total appropriation for clerks $31,800,000; for carriers, $29,750,000; railway mail clerks, $19,465,000; rural carriers, $37,360,000.

The increase in transportation cost by railroads necessitated an increase for this part of the service.

FLIGHT OF BIRDS

Most of the Tribes White Migrating Travel at Night.

The more timid of the birds migrate at night, and so cut us off from one of the chief joys of autumn, seeing their regiments cross the sky. The English robin, according to Ruskin, is a night migrant, and in this land the woodpeckers, chickadees, flycatchers, meadow-larks, orioles, many of the finches, vireos, tanagers, warblers, wrens, nuthatches, and most thrushes prefer night travel. They are timid and afraid of attracting attention if they go in swarms by daylight. It seems they carefully plan their departure, prearrange a date—would that one had the magic ear and share their councils—and then on the fixed night they gather at the note of their leader and fly more or less mingled in a long column; not a compact flock, but separate parties of individuals and small divisions, but always sufficiently near to be guided by the calls of those ahead. The leaders of these migratory flights are the older birds who have had previous experience and who are familiar with the routes of travel.

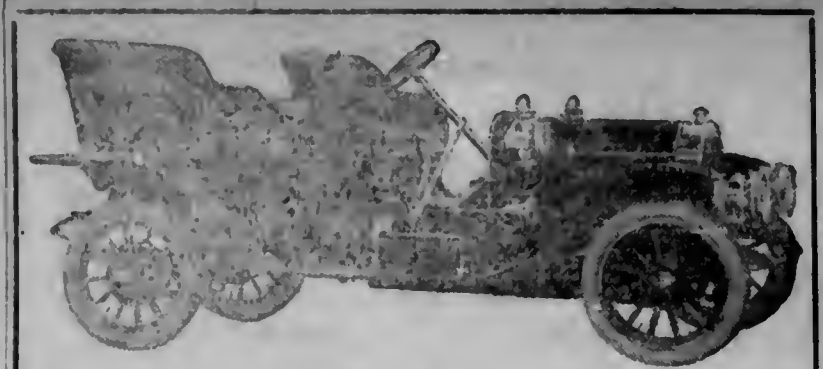

The swallow is not only a day traveler, but one of the most easily recognized of fliers, whether he go singly or in swarms. Swift and straight as an arrow, he lashes himself forward with his wings and steers with his forked tail. According to Mchelt, a swallow is supposed to make about eighty lengths an hour in flight, so that, as Mr. Ruskin says, "leaving Devonshire after an early breakfast, he could be in Africa in lunch."—Harper's Weekly.

TOOK POISON TO END A STRUGGLE

Arthur C. Schmidt Preferred
Death to Fight.

His Tragic Death Great Shock to His Friends—Remains Taken to Metropolis.

HE WAS HIGHLY ESTEEMED

The Cairo Bulletin says: "Arthur C. Schmidt, a druggist, employed in the Sanderson pharmacy at Mound City, took five grains of morphine with suicidal intent Tuesday night, from the effects of which he died at the Illinois hotel in Mound City yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. "The decedent was 32 years of age and was a capable, refined young man of excellent character. His tragic end came as a shock to his employer and to all who knew him in Mound City, where he had resided for the past two months.

"The coroner held an inquest over the remains yesterday morning, the verdict being suicide, no reason being assigned for the deed.

"It develops, however, that the young man had been addicted to the liquor habit, which he had tried persistently to give up, but being unsuccessful, his relatives believe, that he determined to end the fruitless struggle he had made. Mr. Sanderson states that Schmidt did not drink while on duty.

"Schmidt left the pharmacy about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening to go to the Illinois hotel for supper. As he left he exchanged some remarks with his employer in a lumpy mood. As the young man failed to return to the store about 8 o'clock, Mr. Sanderson was about to make inquiry concerning him when a waitress employed in the hotel came into the store and asked that a doctor be sent to the hotel at once, that Schmidt had taken poison. Mr. Sanderson gave no credence to the report until assured by others that the news was true. Dr. Hall Whiteaker was called and went at once to the hotel. He found the young man unconscious, and began strenuous work to save his life, which effort was made until 3 o'clock in the morning. The young man died shortly afterward.

"Schmidt had packed his trunk and left a note for Mr. Sanderson, in which he asked that his mother, Mrs. Jacob Schmidt, who resides at Metropolis, be notified and requesting that his board be paid to date.

"The decedent's cousin, Mr. Atkins, of Metropolis, arrived in Mound City yesterday morning and took the remains to Metropolis on the Dick Fowler. The funeral will be held there today.

"The decedent is also survived by a brother residing in Chicago and a sister, who lives in Springfield."

ON DUTY AGAIN

FIREMEN AND HORSES ARE ALL RECOVERING.

Injuries and Sickness Crippled Department for Few Weeks
This Year.

Once more the fire department is on its feet again as under the careful nursing of the firemen the sick and injured horses have about recovered or are on the road. The department has been fortunate. While the horses were in bad shape there were few alarms, which gave the wounds an opportunity to heal. "Dave," the horse at the No. 4 station, is completely well and in harness again. "Blue Boy," of the Central station has recovered from an attack of pneumonia and is pulling the hose wagon. "Mack," the pride of Chief Wood, is recovering from his illness and will be pulling the big chief in a few days. "Gus" and "Plow Handles," the horses injured Saturday night by falling on the smooth street, have about recovered. The firemen gave their pets every attention and although a little sore yet, have recovered quickly from the effects of the fall.

POWER OF THE SENATE UPHELD

Can Direct Heads to Give Congress Information.

Lodge Raises Question; Others Speak
In Favor of Question Under Consideration.

THE NEWS FROM THE CAPITOL.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The authority of congress to direct the heads of the executive departments to send to the senate or house information in their possession was the subject of an extended speech in the senate by Bacon, of Georgia. Bacon took the broad view that congress has absolute power to demand from the heads of departments any information within their possession, and even to require them to give reasons for their action or non-action on any matter coming before them.

Lodge questioned the power of congress to demand papers on file in diplomatic matters and insisted upon the right of the president to exercise discretion in such matters.

Hale declared he did not believe the president intended to state in his message to congress that he would not furnish documents and information, but merely that he declined to permit a cabinet officer to furnish reasons for action he had taken. He stated he would regret seeing congress and the president lock horns on the question of the power of congress to procure information in possession of the executive.

Fulton, Teller, Clapp, Monri and others joined in the debate, all of them upholding the powers of the senate in the matter under consideration.

$15,000 for Playgrounds.
Washington, Jan. 14.—Practically the whole session of the house yesterday was devoted to the discussion of an amendment to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, appropriating $15,000 for children's play grounds. The subject occasioned a lively debate. The supporters of the proposition prevailed and the amendment accordingly was adopted.

The bill was still pending when the house adjourned.

To Improve Mississippi.
Washington, Jan. 14.—Representative Tawney, of Minnesota, introduced a bill for the authorization of an appropriation of $20,000,000 for the permanent improvement of the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Missouri and St. Paul, Minn. The bill provides that $2,000,000 be appropriated annually for this purpose.

Year after year, many Paducah men who wouldn't think of depositing their money with a mail order bank, continue to spend it with mail-order tailors—men who have no interest other than to "get the orders."

Every season, representatives of tailoring firms from the cities come to Paducah and carry away hundreds of dollars in orders from men who should be spending that money in PADUCAH.

Same reasoning applies to tailors as to banks. The local bank gets your money because you know the men who run it; know they are capable, responsible. They have to have your business—and treat you right to hold it. Failing in that, they go out of business.

There are a number of good tailors in Paducah—responsible merchants, employing skilled workmen—men who live, and spend their all, in Paducah—WITH YOU.

Ninety per cent of the money paid for a suit made in Paducah stays RIGHT HERE. Of the money paid for a mail-order suit, fifty cents goes to the hotels, the rest to the cities.

So get right. Encourage local enterprise. Patronize those who patronize you. Build up the city. Let your dollar go farther than the hotels.

If the local tailor makes your clothes and anything SHOULD go wrong with them, you don't have to write any letters to have it made right—at once.

ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME!

How alluring that does sound—and how seldom the ideal is realized in the average boarding house.

Yet there are numbers of refined, intelligent families in Paducah who would be willing to take in a congenial man or woman—not as a boarder but as an additional member of the family.

All the refined people in town are not overburdened with this world's goods, you know, and a three time ad. in the want columns of THE SUN would probably find you just the kind of a home you are having such a hard time finding—and at a cost of only a few cents.

At any rate, the sort of people you want to reach are sure to see your little ad. if you place it in THE SUN, for our paper is edited for the benefit of the better element of the city.

EIGHT ADDITIONS

TO FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
SETTLED LAST NIGHT.

Large Attendance at Revival Being Conducted by Dr. Crossfield of Transylvania.

There was a large attendance at the First Christian church revival last night, and the interest increases day after day. The sermon by Dr. Crossfield was one of great power and yet of great simplicity. He defined religion in a most convincing manner showing that, in the Bible view of it, it is a charitable, beneficent, compassionate life rather than a theory or an emotion—something to live and practice rather than a thing to get and lose. At the close of the sermon eight people came forward to unite with the church, six by confession of faith in Christ and two, a man and his wife, to unite by statement. This was an occasion of great joy to the congregation. The singing led by Professor Sturgis is a marked and enjoyable feature of the meetings. There was a full attendance of the large chorus last night. Some of the best singers of other churches are rendering valuable assistance, which is highly appreciated. Professor Sturgis sang "My Brother's Prayer" with pathetic tenderness and power, which perceptibly moved the large congregation.

Dr. Crossfield will give his second lecture on Sunday school work at 4 p. m. These lectures are of a high and instructive order and are of immense value to Sunday school workers and the people generally. It will preach tonight on the subject "Drifting Away From God." The song service will begin at 7:30 sharp and the sermon at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to all these services.

Sleds at a Premium.
Lucky was the little boy in whose stocking Santa Claus dropped a sled Christmas Eve. With the snow on the ground, and coasting at its best, the small supply of sleds on hand the hardware stores sold out like hot pancakes. Monday the sled supply of Paducah was exhausted, but the dealers had so many calls for the sleds that orders to wholesale houses were telegraphed to send supplies by express. This morning one firm received a dozen sleds from St. Louis, and they were gone in a few minutes after being placed on sale.
